The Tidewater Inn has long been famous for the excellence of its food and its smooth "Red Coat Service". Tempting and time-honored Maryland dishes find their way to eager palates from our ultra-modern stainless steel cuisine. Gourmet dishes, prepared by internationally acclaimed chefs, are served with true "old world" skill.

After dinner, enjoy coffee in the Blue Room as a prelude to a rubber of bridge, an evening of dancing, or a film at the local Theatre. We find that many of our guests just prefer a quiet stroll through the colonial streets of Easton topped off with a nightcap in the River Room before retiring to a peaceful night of slumber.

While enjoying the comfort and convenience of the completely modern Tidewater Inn, we invite you to visit the town of Easton so full of the warmth and culture that could remain so enviably unchanged only on the Eastern Shore.

Visit the stately gardens which were old when the Revolution was young. Watch the last working sailing fleet in the nation put out into the Chesapeake for a day of oyster tonging. Share with us the breathtaking sunsets and the beauty of this verdant land.

Interested in the Colonial Days of our Nation? Many of the early Plantation homes are still standing.
For example, a few hours west of Miami Grove (about 1754), or San Domingo (about 1800), and
"about" in 1905, will tingle the soul of any historian. For the garden and the house itself, we suggest a visit to the W. J. Plantation and the W. J. Oak House. This lovely building is located under the branches of the 400 W. J. Oak.

For those of our guests who like to really relax, we recommend a sightseeing trip to the Chesapeake Bay Maritime Museum. Located on St. Michaels harbor, the museum is a permanent record of the ships and people who have contributed to the greatness of the Chesapeake Bay Area. Visitors can spend most of a day browsing among the exhibits and learning about Bay lore.
